

I oppose any legislation that would weaken the no-call list that we have in Wisconsin. Telemarketers are some of the most harassing, privacy invaders in modern history. They should be outlawed, period. We have good legislation in Wisconsin protecting us from this invasion of our privacy and peace within our homes. I would bet that any of the legislators involved with changing this legislation to allow more telemarketing hate it in their own homes. Even if you have an unpublished number, it doesn't matter. They have computers that dial randomly and can reach anyone's home. Please do not let the businesses that use telemarketing convince you that this is a good or necessary type of business. It is an awful business that has gotten way out of hand. Thank you for consideration of my viewpoint. Kathy Weber
